

The Centre for Social Cohesion joins with The Henry Jackson Society

CSC Press Release 8 April 2011

We are pleased to announce that the Centre for Social Cohesion (CSC) has combined together with the London-based think tank The Henry Jackson Society, who share the same philosophy as the CSC in addition to their broader mission statement.

The Henry Jackson Society works to foster a strong British and European commitment towards freedom, liberty, constitutional democracy, human rights, governmental and institutional reform and a robust foreign, security and defence policy and transatlantic alliance.

From April 2011, CSC personnel joined the Henry Jackson Society. With highly skilled researchers and a proven track record on both sides of the Atlantic as experts in their fields, the combined resources will significantly strengthen both organisations.

CSC legacy projects, including the groundbreaking Islamist Terrorism: The British Connections, will continue to be updated and the CSC will retain an independent presence.

The Centre for Social Cohesion Director Douglas Murray will join the Henry Jackson Society as Associate Director. Douglas Murray said:

"Both the CSC and the Henry Jackson Society have a proven commitment to the promotion of pluralism and democracy at home and abroad. CSC staff and I are pleased to be working now with the Henry Jackson Society and look forward to expanding our pioneering work."

Enquiries: 0207 340 9640 / 07538 248610

The Centre for Social Cohesion is an independent think tank
*The Centre for Social Cohesion * 210 Pentonville Road * London * N1 9JY ***